We're Saddened by the Passing of Mrs. Faile

The Foundation is sad to announce that Kay Faile, George Faile's mother, died suddenly in October. The Foundation wishes to thank everyone who has donated money to the Faile Foundation in her name.

Mrs. Faile went to Africa with her husband in 1953 when they traveled to Nigeria. Soon after arriving in Nigeria, she delivered her third child, Cherry. She spent most of her time in the early years taking care of her children. She had two more children born in Africa but soon after the family moved to Nalerigu her second son died of unknown causes.

"Life was often hard for her in the early days, but she was a great help and support to my dad and to us," said her son, George.

Mrs. Faile home schooled all of her children through fourth grade. "She always said one of the hardest things she had to do was to send her children away to school in Nigeria at such a young age (my sister and I were 10 and 11 when we first left home for school)," said George.

She was always generous and self sacrificing and an excellent hostess for the many visitors to the mission compound.

"She used to help with the hospital books in the early days of the hospital and often went to get patients who needed help getting to the hospital," said George. "In fact, it was while she was gone to a village to get a patient that my younger brother got sick and died."

He added that she was important to the beginning and the continuation of the hospital because of her support and encouragement.

Please join us in offering the Faile family our condolences.

This picture was taken in the summer of 2006. It was one of the few times all of her children were together with her at one time.
